

WHAT DO I HAVE TO BEAR IN MIND WHEN ON HOLIDAY WITH MY DOG?

Travelling can, of course, be stressful for a dog. It is therefore important that the destination is carefully selected and the journey to get there is well-planned. That means: Several stages and breaks are necessary to allow for your dog's needs. For journeys within the EU, specific entry requirements apply to dogs which you should read up on beforehand. For journeys within the EU, the dog must be chipped in any event and its owner always carry the EU pet passport, in which all vaccinations are listed.

Those who have found the right destination – one where your dog has enough space to run around and play – and have arrived there, in the ideal case will have more animal benefits than just a bowl on the room.

Taking your dog on a city trip is not always the optimal choice. It is much better to find a suitable dog guesthouse with dog sitting in the country or in the mountains, where there is plenty to discover in the surroundings: forests and meadows, mountains and pastures. Hiking and exploring nature here while breathing in the fresh air is a true highlight not just for humans.
